
It is a pleasure to have you here with us! IHS recognizes the scholarly impact and practical application your work has on our understanding of a free society, and we are eager for you to join the conversation regarding technology regulation. We anticipate many active and collaborative discussions taking place during our time together, and we hope you will share insights and knowledge based on your own research and experiences with us throughout the day.

IHS Policy Research Seminars seek to facilitate scholarly collaboration among faculty, graduate students, policy experts, and our own staff in attendance. We encourage you to connect with the other scholars attending our program, as your similar research interests are one of the many reasons we invited you here today. Our experience suggests some of the most impactful connections are made during meals and receptions, so please plan to attend all scheduled events.

Thank you so much for sharing your time with us. We look forward to meeting each of you over the course of the seminar, and we hope your attendance here leads to future partnership with IHS and other scholars as we work toward a freer and more prosperous world together.

Sincerely,

Jeanne Hoffman
Faculty Liaison
Institute for Humane Studies
Founded in 1961 by Dr. F.A. “Baldy” Harper, the Institute for Humane Studies is the leading institute in higher education dedicated to championing classical liberal ideas and the scholars who advance them. Specifically, we facilitate the impact of the academic community both on and beyond college campuses—partnering with faculty to connect with students through campus programs, connecting scholars to opportunities to further their careers both inside and outside of the academy, and offering current and aspiring professors access to the foremost community of scholars working within the classical liberal tradition.

IHS Policy Research Seminars

IHS Policy Research Seminars seek to bridge the gap between academia and policy by encouraging the use of academic research to influence policy change. Seminars give an audience of advanced graduate students, policy experts, and faculty the chance to connect with like-minded individuals and help to facilitate connections with our partner organizations with the goal of producing future research, speaking, and publishing opportunities.

The International Center for Law & Economics is a nonprofit, nonpartisan research center. Working with a roster of more than fifty academic affiliates and research centers from around the globe, we develop and disseminate academic output to build the intellectual foundation for rigorous, economically-grounded policy.

Our primary activity is the funding, organization, management, and networking of our resident staff and affiliated scholars and centers. We also develop research programs, provide high-quality policy analysis, and organize conferences, roundtables, and symposia.

As an independent, privately funded research organization, ICLE does not accept government grants, is not attached to a university, and does not do “contract” research. Our resident scholars and affiliates address the issues they believe to be most pressing in the context of our shared mission. We are supported in our efforts by affiliated institutions, industry partners, and individuals who believe in our mission and in our ability to fulfill it.

TIMOTHY BRENNAN
PROFESSOR OF PUBLIC POLICY AND ECONOMICS
BRENNAN@UMBC.EDU
Tim Brennan is a professor of public policy and economics at the University of Maryland Baltimore County and a senior fellow at Resources for the Future (RFF). He began his career as a staff economist at the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice, where his work included the monopolization cases against AT&T and Microsoft. He has been the senior staff economist for industrial organization and regulation for the White House Council of Economic Advisers and a staff consultant at the Bureau of Economics at the U.S. Federal Trade Commission. In 2014, Tim served as Chief Economist at the U.S. Federal Communications Commission.

Tim also has Canadian connections. In 2006, he held the T.D. MacDonald Chair in Industrial Economics at the Canadian Competition Bureau. He currently is an International Fellow of the C.D. Howe Institute in Toronto and a member of its Competition Policy Council. Tim has published over 130 articles and book chapters on competition policy, regulatory economics, telecommunications, and energy. He has co-authored two books on electricity policy with colleagues at RFF and has co-edited five books on postal sector economics. He holds a MA in mathematics and PhD in economics from the University of Wisconsin.

NEIL CHILSON
SENIOR RESEARCH FELLOW FOR TECHNOLOGY AND INNOVATION
NEIL.CHILSON@CHARLESKOCHINSTITUTE.ORG
Neil Chilson is the Senior Research Fellow for Technology and Innovation at the Charles Koch Institute. His research guides the Institute’s ongoing efforts to promote digital free speech and free association and to understand the legal and cultural frameworks that best enable people to discover, innovate, and improve all our lives.

Before joining CKI, Neil was the Chief Technologist at the Federal Trade Commission. His work focused on understanding the economics of privacy, convening a workshop on informational injury, and establishing the FTC’s Blockchain Working Group, among other things. Prior to his appointment, he was an advisor to Acting FTC Chairman Maureen K. Ohlhausen. In both roles he advised Chairman Ohlhausen and worked with Commission staff on nearly every major technology-related case, report, workshop, or other proceeding since January 2014, when he joined her office. Neil joined the FTC from Wilkinson Barker Knauer, LLP, where he advised clients on telecommunications, privacy, cybersecurity, and other matters.

Neil has a J.D. from The George Washington Law School, a M.S. in computer science from University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, and a B.S. in computer science from Harding University.
MICHELLE CONNOLLY
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF THE PRACTICE
MICHELLE.CONNOLLY@DUKE.EDU

Michelle P. Connolly is a Professor of the Practice in the Economics Department at Duke University. Professor Connolly’s research and teaching focus on international trade, telecommunications policy, media policy, education, growth, and development. Professor Connolly previously served as Chief Economist of the Federal Communications Commission in 2006-2007 and 2008-2009, and as an Economist in International Research for the Federal Reserve Bank of New York from 1996 to 1997. She graduated Phi Beta Kappa and Summa Cum Laude from Yale University in 1990, and went on to earn her MA and MPhil in economics. Professor Connolly received her PhD in economics from Yale University in 1996.

Professor Connolly has testified before Congress and participated in White House Panels and Roundtables on Spectrum Issues and Trade Policy. In 2011, Professor Connolly received the Howard D. Johnson Trinity College Teaching Prize. In 2013, Professor Connolly was awarded a National Science Foundation Secure and Trustworthy Cyberspace Grant. She currently teaches Macroeconomics and Honors Research, and runs a Spectrum Policy Lab.

SUSAN DUDLEY
DIRECTOR, REGULATORY STUDIES CENTER
SDUDLEY@GWU.EDU

Susan Dudley is Director of the George Washington University Regulatory Studies Center, which she established in 2009 to raise awareness of regulations’ effects and improve regulatory policy through research, education, and outreach. She is also a distinguished professor of practice in the Trachtenberg School of Public Policy and Public Administration. She is past president of the Society for Benefit Cost Analysis, a senior fellow with the Administrative Conference of the United States, a National Academy of Public Administration fellow, on the board of the National Federation of Independent Businesses Legal Center and Economists Incorporated, and on the executive committee of the Federalist Society Administrative Law Group. Her book, Regulation: A Primer, with Jerry Brito, is available on Amazon.com.

From April 2007 through January 2009, Professor Dudley served as the Presidentially-appointed Administrator of the Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs in the U.S. Office of Management and Budget and was responsible for the review of draft executive branch regulations under Executive Order 12866, the collection of federal-government-wide information under the Paperwork Reduction Act, the development and implementation of government-wide policies in the areas of information policy, privacy, and statistical policy, and international regulatory cooperation efforts.

Prior to OIRA, she directed the Regulatory Studies Program at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University, and taught courses on regulation at the George Mason University School of Law. Earlier in her career, Professor Dudley served as an economist at OIRA, as well as the Environmental Protection Agency and the Commodity Futures Trading Commission. She was also a consultant to government and private clients at Economists Incorporated. She holds a MS from the Sloan School of Management at MIT and a BS (summa cum laude) in Resource Economics from the University of Massachusetts, Amherst.
TOM HAZLETT
H.H. MACAULAY ENDOWED PROFESSOR OF ECONOMICS
ALEXHAZLETT@GMAIL.COM

Thomas W. Hazlett is the Hugh H. Macaulay Endowed Professor of Economics at Clemson University, where he also directs the Information Economy Project. He has previously held faculty positions at George Mason University, the University of California, Davis, and the Wharton School, and served as Chief Economist of the Federal Communications Commission. A noted expert in regulatory economics and information markets, his research has appeared in academic forums such as the Journal of Law & Economics, RAND Journal of Economics, the Journal of Financial Economics, the University of Pennsylvania Law Review and the Columbia Law Review. He has also written for such popular periodicals as the Wall Street Journal, The Economist, Slate, the N.Y Times, N.Y Daily News, Reason, Reuters.com, Business Week, The New Republic and the Financial Times. His most recent book, The Political Spectrum: The Tumultuous Liberation of Wireless Technology, from Herbert Hoover to the Smartphone, (Yale, 2017), was featured as one of the top tech books of the year at CES 2018.

GUS HURWITZ
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF LAW, CO-DIRECTOR OF SPACE, CYBER, & TELECOM LAW PROGRAM
GHURWITZ@UNL.EDU

Professor Hurwitz’s work builds on his background in law, technology, and economics to consider the interface between law and technology and the role of regulation in high-tech industries. He has a particular expertise in telecommunications law and technology, including data and cybersecurity, and was recognized as a Cyber Security & Data Privacy Trailblazer by the National Law Journal. His work has appeared in the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology, Michigan Telecommunications and Technology Law Review, as well as the George Mason University, University of Connecticut, University of Iowa, Michigan State University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh, and other law reviews and journals.

He is the Co-Director of the Space, Cyber, and Telecommunications Law Program, focusing on the Cyber and Telecommunications components of the program. Since joining the College of Law Faculty, his work has been cited by federal agencies, in judicial opinions, and by United States Senators. He has testified before Congress, participated in roundtable discussions hosted by the FCC, presented to members of US STRATCOM and the US Army’s 7th Signal Command, and to German and Colombian regulators.

Professor Hurwitz previously was the inaugural Research Fellow at the University of Pennsylvania Law School’s Center for Technology, Innovation and Competition (CTIC), prior to which he was a Visiting Assistant Professor at George Mason University Law School. From 2007–2010 he was a Trial Attorney with the United States Department of Justice Antitrust Division in the Telecommunications and Media Enforcement Section. Professor Hurwitz has a background in technology having worked at Los Alamos National Lab and interned at the Naval Research Lab prior to law school. During this time his work was recognized by organizations such as the Federal Laboratory Consortium, R&D Magazine, Los Alamos National Lab, IEEE & ACM, and the Corporation for Education Network Initiatives in California. In addition, he held an Internet2 Land Speed World Record with the Guinness Book of World Records.
Thomas A. Lambert holds the Wall Family Chair in Corporate Law and Governance at the University of Missouri. He is co-author of Antitrust Law: Interpretation and Implementation (5th ed., Foundation Press, 2013) and has authored or co-authored more than thirty journal articles on antitrust, corporate, and regulatory matters. His most recent book, How to Regulate: A Guide for Policymakers, was published by Cambridge University Press in 2017.

Professor Lambert has received numerous teaching awards, including the University of Missouri’s Kemper Fellowship, which is awarded annually to five professors throughout the university.

Before entering academia, Professor Lambert practiced law in the Chicago office of Sidley Austin and was a John M. Olin Fellow at Northwestern University School of Law and the Center for the Study of American Business (now the Murray Weidenbaum Center) at Washington University. He earned his B.A. from Wheaton College and his J.D. from the University of Chicago Law School and clerked for Judge Jerry E. Smith of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit.

Geoffrey A. Manne is the founder and executive director of the International Center for Law and Economics (ICLE), a nonprofit, nonpartisan research center based in Portland, Oregon. He is also a distinguished fellow at Northwestern Law School’s Searle Center on Law, Regulation, & Economic Growth. In April 2017 he was appointed by FCC Chairman, Ajit Pai, to the FCC’s Broadband Deployment Advisory Committee, and he recently served for two years on the FCC’s Consumer Advisory Committee.

Mr. Manne earned his JD and AB degrees from the University of Chicago and is an expert in the economic analysis of law, specializing in competition, telecommunications, consumer protection, intellectual property, and technology policy. Prior to founding ICLE, Manne was a law professor at Lewis & Clark Law School. From 2006-2009, he took a leave from teaching to develop Microsoft’s law and economics academic outreach program. Manne has also served as a lecturer in law at the University of Chicago Law School and the University of Virginia School of Law. He practiced antitrust law and appellate litigation at Latham & Watkins, clerked for Hon. Morris S. Arnold on the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals, and worked as a research assistant for Judge Richard Posner. He was also once (very briefly) employed by the FTC.

Mr. Manne’s publications have appeared in numerous journals including the Journal of Competition Law and Economics, the Harvard Journal of Law and Technology, the Supreme Court Economic Review, and the Arizona Law Review, among others. With former FTC Commissioner, Joshua Wright, Manne is the editor of a volume from Cambridge University Press entitled, Competition Policy and Intellectual Property Law Under Uncertainty: Regulating Innovation. Manne regularly files written comments and amicus briefs on key antitrust, IP, and telecommunications issues. His analysis is frequently published in popular print and broad-casting outlets such as the Wall Street Journal, Wired, Foreign Affairs, NPR, and Bloomberg, among others.

Manne is a member of the American Law and Economics Association, the Canadian Law and Economics Association, and the Society for Institutional & Organizational Economics. He blogs at Truth on the Market (www.truthonthemarket.com) (of which he is also the co-founder), is a contributor at Wired, and tweets at @geoffmanne. His scholarly publications are available at http://ssrn.com/author=175541.

CHRISTOPHER WALKER
ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF LAW
WALKER.1432@OSU.EDU

Christopher J. Walker is an Associate Professor of Law (with tenure) at The Ohio State University Moritz College of Law and Director of the Moritz Washington, D.C., Summer Program. At Moritz, he teaches Civil Procedure, Constitutional Litigation, the Ethics of Washington Lawyering, Federal Courts, Legal Analysis and Writing (LAW II), Legislation and Regulation, and State and Local Government Law.

Professor Walker’s research focuses primarily on administrative law, regulation, and law and policy at the agency level. His publications have appeared in the Michigan Law Review, Stanford Law Review, and University of Pennsylvania Law Review, among others. He has also written a report for the Administrative Conference of the United States on the role of federal agencies in the legislative process, and he co-authors the agency adjudication chapter of the American Bar Association’s annual book Developments in Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice. His article Legislating in the Shadows was selected as the recipient of the 2016 American Association of Law Schools Scholarly Papers Competition Award.

Professor Walker brings to his scholarship and to the classroom extensive practical experience of having worked in all three branches of the federal government as well as in private practice. Prior to joining the law faculty in 2012, Professor Walker clerked for Justice Anthony M. Kennedy of the U.S. Supreme Court and Judge Alex Kozinski of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. He also worked for several years at a litigation boutique in Washington, D.C., as well as on the Civil Appellate Staff at the U.S. Department of Justice, where he represented federal agencies and defended federal regulations in a variety of contexts. During Winter Semester 2017, he served as an academic fellow on the Senate Judiciary Committee, working on the Gorsuch Supreme Court confirmation as well as on regulatory reform legislation for Senator Orrin Hatch. During the summer of 2017, Professor Walker served on Senators Portman and Brown’s bipartisan judicial advisory commission to help fill the three federal district court vacancies in Ohio.

Outside Moritz, Professor Walker serves as one of forty Public Members of the Administrative Conference of the United States, as a Governing Council Member and Adjudication Committee Co-Chair of the American Bar Association’s Section of Administrative Law and Regulatory Practice, and as a member of the Ohio State Bar Association’s Administrative Agency Law Specialty Board. He is also a regular blogger at the Yale Journal on Regulation and the Section Editor for Jotwell’s Administrative Law Section.

Professor Walker received his law degree from Stanford and a master’s in public policy from Harvard’s Kennedy School of Government. At Stanford, he served as managing editor of the Stanford Law Review and editor-in-chief of the Stanford Law and Policy Review.
JUSTIN DAVIS
PROGRAM MANAGER, ACADEMIC TALENT DEVELOPMENT
JDAVIS@IHS.GMU.EDU

Justin Davis serves as the academic talent development program manager at IHS, where he hopes to facilitate the advancement of classical liberal ideas by connecting the worlds of academia and policy. He completed his MA in economics at George Mason University in 2016 and previously attained his BS in business administration from The Citadel in Charleston, South Carolina. His research interests include monetary institutions, entrepreneurship, and institutional development.

Justin also served in the United States Army’s Corps of Engineers for three years as the squad leader of a bridge erection team. His army tenure stationed him in Fort Knox, Kentucky and included a deployment to Afghanistan with the 502nd Engineer Company, where he was a part of the first multi-role bridge company in the country. Justin currently lives in Capitol Hill with his wife Sarah, an interior and graphic designer, and their dog Max.

JEANNE HOFFMAN
FACULTY LIASON
JHOFFMAN@IHS.GMU.EDU

Jeanne Hoffman is the faculty liaison at the Institute for Humane Studies. She has a law degree from Ave Maria School of Law and received her BA in political science from Villanova University. She is a New York native, but has lived in Pennsylvania, Michigan, Russia, and now, Virginia.

She has worked in intellectual property and technology, and has argued asylum cases before the Detroit Immigration Court. In addition to the “law bar,” Jeanne has worked at a jazz-martini bar and considers it the most musically rewarding time of her life. She loves baking cookies, reading, liberty, and Thomas Jefferson.

AMANDA RUETZ
SENIOR PROJECT MANAGER, PROGRAM OPERATIONS
ARUETZ@IHS.GMU.EDU

Amanda joined IHS in 2011. As an intern, she fell in love with the liberty movement and decided working towards a freer society was the career path for her! Before joining the Program Operations team, Amanda was on the Finance team at IHS and our sister organization, the Mercatus Center, for seven years. Her second (and perhaps most important) job is leading the joint IHS/Mercatus softball team as captain each Summer!

Amanda is a native of Michigan and graduated from Hillsdale College where she studied history, business, and music. In her spare time, Amanda enjoys playing softball and volleyball, traveling, discovering new wineries and breweries, and spending time with friends.
